PROPOSED ABERDEENSHIRE LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN 2020 RESPONSE FORM

As part of the production of the Local Development Plan, a 'Main Issues Report' was published in January 2019. The responses from these consultations have helped to inform the content of the Proposed Local Development Plan ("the Proposed Plan").

The Aberdeenshire Local Development Plan will direct decision-making on land-use planning issues and planning applications in Aberdeenshire for the 10-year period from 2021 to 2031. The Proposed Plan was agreed by Aberdeenshire Council in March 2020 as the settled view of the Council. However, the Proposed Plan will be subjected to an independent examination and is now open for public comment.

This is your opportunity to tell us if anything should be changed in the Proposed Plan, and why.

When writing a response to the Proposed Plan it is important to specifically state the modification(s) that you would wish to see to the Plan.

This is the only remaining opportunity to comment on the Proposed Plan. The reasons for any requested changes will be analysed and reported to Scottish Ministers. They will then appoint a person known as a Reporter to conduct a public examination of the Proposed Plan, focusing particularly on any unresolved issues and the changes sought.

Ministers expect representations (or responses) to be concise (no more than 2000 words) and accompanied by limited supporting documents. It is important to ensure that all of the information that you wish to be considered is submitted during this consultation period as there is no further opportunity to provide information, unless specifically asked.

Please email comments to ldp@aberdeenshire.gov.uk or send this form to reach us by 31 July 2020*.

We recommend that you keep a copy of your representation for your own records.

UPDATE 16 June 2020: Consultation period was extended from 17 July 2020 for a further two-week period.*

Modification that you wish to see (please make specific reference to the section of the Proposed Plan you wish to see modified if possible, for example Section 9, paragraph E1.1):

Sections 7 – Shaping Development in the Countryside:

Policy R1 – Special Rural Areas – Policy R1 should be amended to include a criteria that allows consideration for development that contributes to meeting a shortfall in the housing land supply and that can meet the needs of smaller communities where development and economic growth may have been historically constrained.

Policy R2.1-2.3 – Development Proposals Elsewhere in the Countryside - Policy R2.1-2.3 should be amended to consider development that meets an identified need and does not assess it against the same policy restrictions as it would green belt and/or special landscape areas.

Policy R2.11-2.14 – Organic Growth of Settlements - Policy R2.11-2.14 – Add the following wording in the phrase “a particular need for development has been established by the Planning Authority and/or Applicant”.

Removal of the phrase beyond “unreasonable doubt” and replace with wording that applies a balance. “Proposals should be considered against development plan policies and adverse impacts balanced with benefits to establish the suitability of development, allowing for organic growth”.

Reason for change:

Policy R1 – Special Rural Areas:

Gladman has concerns regarding the restrictive nature of this policy. Residential development should be considered within these areas when a contribution will be made to meeting a shortfall in the housing land supply.

In addition, this policy should not be used to restrict housing development that will help to meet the need of smaller communities where there has been limited growth in the past years, especially those surrounded by green belt and/or special landscape areas. Enabling appropriate scale development will actively contribute to sustainable development objectives.

Policy R2.1-2.3 & R2.11-2.14 – Development Proposals Elsewhere in the Countryside and Organic Growth of Settlements:

Policy R2 is overly restrictive and imposes unreasonable requirements with very little evidence to support the justification. Policies R2.1-2.3 implies that development in the Countryside is to be assessed against the requirements and implications as if it were green belt and/or a special landscape area, therefore setting an exceptionally high barrier to new development. This approach essentially limits growth in areas that could potentially accommodate new development, subject to detailed policy considerations.

Policies R2.11 – 2.14 is again overly restrictive for new development. The purpose of the policy is understood; however, this is not translated in the detailed wording. This policy restricts opportunities to deliver modest developments where there is a demand, subsequently contradicting the Scottish Government's ambition to support rural development and population growth. This policy should be closely aligned with the presumption in favour of sustainable development and the assessment of the suitability of a proposal. Developments should be assessed on a site by site basis and a blanket policy like this is not supported.

The policy also refers to "a particular need for development [that] has been established by the Planning authority" and "policies addressing possible constraints on and impacts arising from development will take precedence over organic growth, unless it can be demonstrated beyond all reasonable doubt...". Gladman contest this approach. Firstly, the phrase "beyond all reasonable doubt" should be removed. This approach is not compatible with the presumption in favour of sustainable development. It is the purpose of the planning system to balance the benefits with any adverse impacts and assess it on that basis, not as described by this policy. In addition, it should not solely be the responsibility of the planning authority to identify a need, an applicant may be capable of demonstrating this need and therefore it can be assessed on that basis.
